Note & Vote

1. Note: Write down as many ideas, you will not share all of them.
2. Self-edit: Review your own list and pick one or two favorites.
3. Share & Capture: Share top ideas and no sale pitch!
4. Vote: Commit vote on paper and don’t change it!
5. Share & Capture: Share votes and a sales pitch.
6. Decide: Decider makes the last call and doesn’t need to respect the vote.

lets

begin

What?

Write what our organization will be doing at each future date on the timeline

Why?

We shouldn’t expect to stick to this roadmap, instead, lets start thinking about the brand’s lifespan

15 year roadmap

a great brand will last a long time...

What?

Collect answers to the following questions:

1. What do we do? A literal phrase or sentence describing the business.
2. How do we do it? What’s the secret sauce that sets us apart from everyone else.
3. Why??? The reason we exist. This will not change much over time.

Why?

Every organization has a strong motivation and that motivation shines through, so let's find it!

what, how, why

strong motivation shines through

What?

Let's make the why more specific by listing and ranking our organization’s values (word or short phrase).

Why?

Determine what really matter to us and create decision-making principles. Cutting down to three ranked values clarifies our message and sets us apart.

top 3 values

if we had 20 values, then everything would be on brand

break

What?

List our possible audiences, then figure out whose most important. Be specific or broad!

Why?

Values are helpful for brand decisions, but they are not the whole picture. We also need to know who we are talking to!

top 3 audiences

Whose opinion do we really care about?

What?

A classic brand exercise. We will position our organization between pairs of brand extremes.

Why?

A brand's personality can help inform communication and design decisions.

Lets add some character!

What?

Create a list of organizations in the same space as us. Decide where we want to position ourselves.

Why?

What makes us special? If we want to be the best, then we should first know where we stand.

So what about everyone else?
